

the car with me now. If you want to see me, you get up here to the Bank corner and when I leave town, you can go back." And I just drove off. She was trying to get in there. Another time, Mildred and my daughter--it was along about last spring the time school was out--I think the time I made my last round up there. And this old girl, she was confusing me with Welfare. They taken her kids away from her before I ever started working. Her name was Williams. And she wanted to talk to me. Had to go around behind the car, secretly. And went around behind the car and she got to telling me about wanting her kids back. I said, "Well, you're talking to the wrong person. I don't know anything about Welfare. I don't even know your kids. They took your kids before I ever started working. I don't know anything about them. I wouldn't know them if I saw them." And so I started to leave and she went around on that side--to the door on that side of the car, and just put herself right against that handle. If I'd reached around her, you see, I'd have had to touch her, and she'd have fallen over and hollered that I pushed her or something. I could see what she was trying to do. And I said, "I've got to go. I don't have anything to do with your kids--I don't have anything to do with Welfare." She just stood there. Just as mean as she could be. I said, "Mildred, slide over here and back the car out." So she just stood there. I said, "Back the car out." And she cut the wheels, and that car shoved her over and she said, "I believe you'd run over me, wouldn't you?"

Mrs. Stegall: I wasn't about to run over her--

Bob: She wanted me to reach around her, see, and make contact with her, and then she would have hollered. But I didn't touch her. I just backed the car out.

THE LIME FAMILY OF CANTON

(I just want to ask you one more thing. About these Limes--about their family?)

Jes's: Yeah.
