

Hominy about that time.)

They's about, I don't know, 3 or 4 of 'em around here.

(Do you remember who they was?)

Oh, see.

(How about old man Patterson, was he here then, that blacksmith.)

His father was here.

(Oh, his father.)

Old man named Bopes, he was here and old man Dunlap, Cleveland, he was here.

(Is that Zulu Dunlap is that her father. Zulu Dunlap is that her father?)

No.

(Different ones, huh?)

Different ones, altogether. Dunlap, up at Pawhuska, old John Fergerson.

An old Indian trader, he's the one that adopted my father.

(Oh.)

And Ruth had his name awhile used to be Ruth Frazier, his name was John Fergerson.

(What kind of, like you was saying, when you got sick way back there, how did they get well like that. Did they have herbs, they tell me they had some kind of herbs.)

Yeah they had some kind. I don't know what they had. They go out and, I never thought much about that, you know. Usually get aching someplace, they get rocks and they heat 'em when they get hot they put it where it hurts. Wrapped around with cloth.

EDUCATION

(Way back there, Otis, your folks, what did they think about, when they wanted to send you to school. Did they want you to go?)
