

Fred: No.

You remember, you know.

Fred: Yeah.

He used to go to peyote meetings, go to these meetings. He doctor herbs, different kind of herbs. I remember that, but that's all I remember, I don't remember, just that. He doctor any kind of sickness, sores or fever, you know, things like that.

(You know, all hear a lot about this medicine bag, you know, like I said, you know.)

AMOS MOUSE - WITCH MEDICINE

Uh-huh, and years to come I didn't, I didn't see that but I hear my mother and father talk about it, Amos Mouse. I don't know where he--I don't know where, but he lived in Pawhuska. He had that kind--well, he had woman medicine, you know, like--mens they carry it. My mother used to say my father said that woman, you know, you could carry that, what he make, you know, you could get any woman you want. That was Amos Mouse. He fixed that. There were all he done was just carry it, and you get any woman you want like that. That's only one I know of.

(Well did you ever hear that--like some of these Indians, you know, like you talking there, they know this person's got that medicine and they want to protect their daughters or something like that, they got some--don't they have something like that, kind of make it backfire on this guy that uses medicine?)

Oh, uh-huh, kind of like witch.

(Yeah.)

Of Osages. Oh, no, I don't remember that part. I don't hear about that you know.

(Uh-huh. I don't know. Sometimes I always have--don't know where I hear it, but if they know this man's going after the girl, seem like he'll do is
