

(Well)

I was going along there one day. Walking along there. My uncle was down below me. And my brother was back ahead of me, and I was in the middle. I was walking along like that. And I seen grass that had been mashed down a bit. I kept looking and looking and seen something laying there. It was big old buck laying in there.

(Well)

He was shot. I tell you whoever shot him probably didn't know he shot him.

(Yeah)

(Not clear) back of that tree. (Not clear) I come home. Me and my cousins the one came down here to have operation.

(Yeah)

(Not clear), I stay (rest of the sentence is not clear.)

PEOPLE SEEMED TO BE HEALTHIER IN EARLY DAYS - FOOD

(Yeah. In the early day people didn't have strokes or heart failure. Did they? It's just something new in this later generation, isn't it?)

Yeah that cancer is new too.

(Yeah cancer. They didn't have cancer back then. Well they lived much healthier back in those days. Didn't they? They ate the proper things.)

Yeah. (Not clear.)

(It is.)

Not here. I used to good meat over there. Had good steaks. I get them there club steaks. Couldn't get good pork. I don't know why. I used to like pork for breakfast. Shoulder cut.

(Uh-huh.)

'Course I cut the fat all off. Render it out. That way I save my own grease. I got my own lard.

(That's right.)
