

(No, you couldn't get very far on a dollar. But a dollar in those days you could buy a lot of things.)

Why yes. We said one time--my sister-in-law you know, just a five dollar bill would go a long way.

(Oh yeah.)

Two dollars. Get gifts for our room mates and all, you know.

(Yeah.)

But now you can't do that.

(No, you sure can't. Times have sure changed.)

You remember Sally, don't you?

(Yeah.)

She died. I guess you knew that.

(No, I didn't know it.)

Died in '61. Died of cancer. She married and lived in Kansas City.

(Do you have an Indian church close by here, Katie?)

I think the only close Indian church is over in Johnson Prairie, over in-- down there what you been talking about.

(Yeah.)

(Katie's sentence not clear.)

(Yeah.)

And then I think they got one right over on at--I'm pretty sure they have at what they call--

(End of Interview.)
