

(Yeah.)

They were supposed to catch him out there with this rope. And well, had this-- like a wagon sheet. But he went through that, and hit a tree and broke his back. He died.

(Well.)

And that was the last of that.

(Yeah.)

Oh they had this swing. People come from everywhere.

(Well that was a big event then. What time of the year did they have that?)

In the fall.

(In the fall.)

And then they had this. Well we called it a dog show. Hunters would come down in there.

(Yeah.)

Every year. And they'd race down there every year. Brought their wolf dogs.

(Yeah.)

One time they had five hundred dogs down there.

(My goodness! Five hundred dogs. At a show.)

They was there from, well every place, I guess.

(Yeah.)

They had a nice program down there.

(Uh-huh. Well that would have been something interesting to see.)

Yes. I lived right here whenever they had the dog show.

(Yes ma'am.)

I'd go up there when I seen them bring them all in. There won't be easy to sleep. Course you can't sleep. But you know they turn those dogs loose at daylight.

(Yeah.)
