

(Well.)

So I decided I'm gonna burn it. So I come back through the woods on way home. And I got some cedar and put it on the stove. So everybody around had the flu that winter but us. And Grandma Tucker--

(Well isn't that--?)

So I just thought it must be something.

(There must be something to it then.)

And when they got this here Hong-King flu--when it was going, you know.

(Yes.)

I thought well I'm going to get this cedar on the stove. So I went down there and got some.

(Well there must be something to it then.)

Well now she never had it, and we never had it. And I know everywhere people just a dying. But us.

(Yeah.)

People wouldn't go anywhere and we did. A young girl was taking care of a man and woman. Well he died--no, the woman died first. And some folks got water at the well there. But they didn't come in the house. Just that girl there. And that one dead--other one died.

(Well.)

(End of Side A - Part II. End of interview with Mary Burge.)