

(It's been a long time. Was there a town here when they had the mission over here?)

No sir just a post office.

(No town just post office. And then the railroad--did they have railroad then?)

No.

(No railroad.)

No railroad.

(Well let's see then, Muskogee, that was the closest town, wasn't it?)

Wagoner too.

(Oh Wagoner? Well that was quite a while ago then.)

Lot of them would go to Coweta.

Coweta.)

That's an Indian town.

(Yes. Yeah Coweta was a Creek Indian town.)

Yes, Creek Indians.

(And Porter, was it. Was there any Porter when you were going to school here?)

Oh no, no.

(No town of Porter.)

No. 'Cause that pick up when the railroad went through.

PREFERS TO RETAIN HER HOME ON THE FARM - CHILDREN SCATTERED

I see. Well this has all be farming country through here. I guess all the time hasn't it?)

Uh-huh. What little they did know to farm.

I see.)

Use horses and had big gardens. Cows and pigs.

(Yeah.)

In the pen. You know things like that. But it was happy.
