

(Why sure)

Same thing as that. Now I remember seeing where they's signed this petition to farm this old man's land. And they had funny names some of them did. And they were Indian names. And different kinds of people they were. And there wasn't any in that body hardly. Just a wilderness, not a wilderness, but a big prairie. There's a lot of farm and oil wells on it now, back in east, east Texas is where it's at.

(Yeah.)

So, now he come from the old country and lived a long time, settled at Maysville, Arkansas.

(Well)

And he left there and went into Texas.

(static)

(How did you (words not clear)

RECALLS MANY THINGS ABOUT EARLY DAYS

I was talking to some folks here a while back, I said, "I've been though here, right here where this building is." "All through this country not too far back that away but from here by towards Tahlequah."

(Yes)

Spade Hollow, they called it. And there wasn't a thing in the world. Just a crooked road. And sometimes you just pretty near stuck a horse. There wasn't no road and what roads there was, and if the owners find it, mow it down right where it was.

(Yeah)

And that's cause, how I found this down here. And I remember all them things when I used to be here.

(Well)

When I was a boy you know.
