You see the Spanish was here at that time. They lived around here. Because they--Chouteau come over here. He was a Frenchman. Come over here to Salina. That's an old post over there. That's the old site where he had his trading post. And there had to be somebody here for him to trade with and sell.

(Yeah.)

He couldn't just come over here, and have a trading post over there. Nobody to trade with. And I say the French people--I mean the Spaniards was here. And the English--man says we'll just give them that piece of land down there where them Spaniards is. And we'll make a treaty with them. We'll give it to them. And they can have it as long as the grass grows and water runs. They'll like that.
