

and '18, 1918.

(That was during those war years, wasn't it?)

Yeah. War years, and I come home for something I don't remember what it was now, I come home. Dad told me there wasn't any use in going back 'cause they're going to take you in the army anyway.

(Yes sir.)

They come almost but not quite.

(Well lot of 'em did have to go.)

Yeah, I quit school at that time.

(Yeah.)

I helped at home and after I was out awhile, well, I wouldn't go back, just liked two years. Of course one brother he went ahead and finished. He left school one time, then he went back and finished up. He's in Tennessee now.

(Yeah.)

'Course that's Bill.

(Well, now let's see there's Shawnee, over in those Shawnee hills, Randy Carpenter, he was telling me he went there 1912 though, I believe.)

Yeah. He went there quite a while before I did.

(Yeah, he did.)

Yeah. I know Randy, and his brother Leonard. He lives in Tulsa.

(Yeah, that's right.)

I think he retired, too. They both worked for the state. They worked for the highway department.
