

or did he just stay there all the time?)

Well, they just stay there for rest, maybe for two or three days, then they gone. They hide out in the mountains, somewhere. But when they're resting there, well, maybe one would be wounded and get doctored up. But they don't stay there. They get fresh supplies of what they want--horses.

OUTLAWS HIRE INDIAN BOYS TO STEAL HORSES AND SUPPLIES FOR THEM

Later on we find out that he was just spying. He hired two or three Indian boys to bring in the best Indian run of the horses--fastest they can find. He payed them. Then they steal them from the Indians and bring them over to his place and he payed them all. These boys that go around and get these horses for him, they always got a good saddle, good gun, plenty of ammunition, and side gun. They wear boots and spurs. They break in a big store over there and bring a big supply of boots over there for those outlaws to wear. So this man get these horses for these outlaws and penned them over there in the timber corral. He pay these boys in saddle and boots.

(These are Indian boys?)

Yeah, Indian boys--some of them Kiowas. They suspicion who they are because many times they were seen around close to where these horses were taken in late evening before the horses were lost. But they never did know who they were for sure that took the horses. But they think they do know who they were because every time a horse was stolen somebody said they saw that fellow just about right where them horses were taken. Several times. So they know that he had something to do with it. They bring him here and they tie him up here and in just a few days they take him to this