

It has now. It hasn't grown any. Had it not been for the coal mining down there I don't suppose it would have amounted too much. But I see now, they're building it up. Has) quite a few residents.

(Did you ever hear anything about Washington community on Dog Creek?)

Well its right down there. That's where, there's a little church down there.

That's where a lot of the Englands and the Fallins, whole bunch of them like that. It was run by Bud Downing. That is as far back as I can remember but Bud Downing lived there. And he died and somebody else has it now.

But I think they've improved the store. But I don't ever get down in there anymore. I don't know too much about what is going on. I did know some of the Indians and I thought of a guy's name awhile ago.

RECALLS NAMES OF MANY FAMILIES.

(Was there any family by the name of Washington? What I'm getting at how the community may have started. Got its name.)

I don't know. I knew Fallins and there's Fallins. Ellis Fallins family down there could give you all that history.

(Well I will see them.)

They would know because he's kin to those MacIntosh's that live there close.

(Well his mother was s Starr then.)

Well, I don't know. I don't know where he gets that name Starr.

(Well it could be typical of some Indian to pick out a name to suit them.)

Well, he does his legal business by the name Starr. And lot of people will come up here and ask for Starr. And I have to think three or four times and

I say "What Starr you talking about?" And they tell me his name. And I say I don't know him as Starr. I know him as Miser.

(Well. I think a lot of him and --)

I remember them Biggs in Tahlequah whole bunch of them. I don't remember
