BELL CEMETERY

According to Oscar Cannon, an old timer in the community who has people buried there, this cemetery was started about 1867. The facts were told to him by his father, Irby Cannon, and his friend, Jesse Parris, an old soldier in the Civil War, who are both buried at this place.

Before the Civil War there were several Cherokee. buried at this place. Recently, after the Civil War, the families of Bell, Cannon and Harless began to use this old cemetery for their burial ground. The land at that time was claimed by Irby Cannon. At allotment this land was allotted by Tilden Bell. Tilden Bell, seconding to the county records, sold this land to John T. McKinnon who now owns the land. Since McKinnon bought the land he has donated about two acres joining this old cemetery for a community cemetery. But the old cemetery is separate from the new. There are forty graves in the old cemetery, twenty-three are marked. There are one hundred and thirty five graves in the new cemetery.
